Theme 1: Finding and Consuming information digitally

Wikipedia: Friend or Foe?

The story of our names

- Discuss these questions in your group
  - Who named you?
  - Why were you named so?
  - What's the meaning of your name?

Tug-of-War

Tug-of-war

- Discuss on the ideas put on the board
- Question the ratings you disagree with
- Reach a unanimous decision as a group

Evaluating articles

- Skim through the articles
- Think about what makes the articles good or bad
- Post your observations on the Miro Board
- Discuss on the ideas put on the board so that the group reached a unanimous agreement

Testing reliability of Wikipedia

- Language
  - Grammar
  - Voice(active or passive?)
- Opinion or fact?
- Bias?
- References
  - Primary, secondary and tertiary

Primary sources

- are original materials that are close to an event, and are often accounts written by people who are directly involved.
- offer an insider's view of any event

Secondary sources

- contain an author's analysis, evaluation, interpretation of the evidence, concepts, and ideas taken from primary sources
- rely on primary sources for their material, making analytic or evaluative claims about them.

Tertiary sources

- are publications that summarize primary and secondary sources.

Sorting the sources

American
Spaces

Sorting the sources

- Drag the notes into appropriate category
- Discuss with group members about the categories each note belongs to
- Reach a unanimous decision as a group

Which source - primary, secondary, or tertiary - are most reliable reference for an article?

American
